Miss Laura Lane
Acting Extension Editor
College Station, Texas

Dear Miss Lane:

With reference to the services of Mr. Hunton, photographer from the Washington office, I wish to advise that it is our understanding that we may have advantage of Mr. Hunton's services October 16 and 17. It is also our understanding that Mr. Hunton will leave Beaumont coming in the Houston area for four days preceding the time that he will do our photographic work.

We have some beef cattle demonstrations in Liberty County that are located close together and if they could be photographed while Mr. Hunton is enroute to the Houston area we would appreciate it very much.

We have selected Harris and Wharton counties in which we would like for Mr. Hunton to work. Beginning in Harris County and concluding in Wharton County which is in the vicinity in which he will resume his work in Edna, Texas.

We wish to thank you for this opportunity and will hold up further plans until we hear from you again.

Dear Mr. Williams:

I hereby request that the two boys whose gilts died be given another pig or be included in the six boys to receive pigs this month as I understand your last letter of information on this matter.

These two boys are: Frank Harold Jr. and Wilbur Glass.

The other four boys will be checked in tomorrow, that is, the new group.

We are looking ~~the~~ forward to the deliverance of these pigs to these boys on the 22nd when we hold our victory show. One boy has only one gilt in his litter and it is a runt and is not fit to pass on. May he exchange one of his good male pigs with another boy who has a good gilt to spare from his litter, in order that he can turn in a good gilt to the next group of boys or how can this be handled?

Dear Mr. Richards:

In reply to your letter of September 28, concerning the Sears pigs, there are 5 boys who received gilts from the foundation last year. In last year's agreement, each of these boys agreed to give another boy selected by the agent a registered gilt, registration paid by the boy.

There will be no additional pigs given by the foundation this year, except to continue the chain where a sow fails to breed or has died.

It may be your job to select these boys. I am enclosing a proposed program for 1942-43. However, the expansion part of it did not go through.

I hope to see you soon.

Mr. S.T. Toney
Negro Agricultural Agent

Dear Mr. Toney:

Your letter of September 27, at hand and you seem to be definitely organized and on your way to become a general, I hope.

I am thinking about your resigning and I quite understand what you are thinking and driving at, and I am sure you have studied this situation through and finally I am going to carry this out according to your desires.

Before I accept this letter of resignation (it is all that is required) let me call your attention to these facts in the case: (1) You will lose all your previous service in case of retirement; (2) Suppose you remain in the service five (5) years, you return past the age limit; (3) if you do not resign, your retirement will draw interest and require no payments while on leave. Give these three factors further thought before making your final decision.

I am planning to see you in a few days if I cannot arrange to be in your October 14 meeting.

I want you to know that I appreciate all the good things you have said about me.

Very truly yours,

I want you to know that it was a genuine pleasure to have had you in our conference at Bryan. The agents were made to feel that you had a real interest in their small problems.

That series of meetings which were held in Columbus, Wharton, Liberty, and Bryan, were made into the Extension milestones by the contributions of specialists and members of the headquarters.

I am hoping that we will have an opportunity to run our meetings concurrently with your squad meeting each month, meeting in the same town and making use of the same specialists.

If this plan meets your approval, kindly send me your agents itinerary so that I may notify my agents. Any suggestions you make in making this type of training more effective will be appreciated.

ANNOUNCER: Experienced feeders believe that ~~unprofitable~~ selling hogs at 200 pounds is not a good practice, because hogs weighing 300 and 400 pounds generally will market at from 25 to 50 cents of top prices. ~~by~~ because hogs Under the present relationship between feed and hog prices, selling or butchering lightweight pigs ~~prices.~~ ~~lightweight~~ is not the way to make the most profit. J. H. Williams, district agent, and M. V. Brown, administrative assistant, Negro Extension workers at Prairie View State Normal and Industrial College, are ~~interviewing~~ here this morning to discuss this subject.

Brown: What is the advantage of producing heavier hogs? Williams?

Williams: By feeding hogs weighing up to 300 pounds, farmers can step up their production 50% without increasing the number of sows or investment in equipment, even adding 50 pounds to make ^{per} 250 hogs gives one fourth increase in production.

Brown: Does this fit into our defense plans?

Williams: Yes it does; ~~this~~ ^{it} is an easy and profitable method of meeting the government's request for a 14% increase in production for this year.

Brown: Do you believe you can profitably develop these weights with the present price of corn and hogs?

Williams: I certainly do Brown. ~~With~~ ^{Corn selling} ~~at 35¢ per bushel,~~ hogs weighing 300 pounds can be produced at a cost of about $8.65 per 100 pounds. This leaves a margin of ~~more than~~ ^{more than} $5.00 per 100 pounds, or $15.00 per 300 pounds hogs. This margin of profit alone amounts to more than the total price paid for 200 pound hogs less than 2 years ago.

Brown: Well, what do you consider the most important factor ~~which~~ ^{which} determines these weights?

Williams: The price of corn is the most important factor for determining how heavy to make hogs for the market or ^{for} home use. This is possible now because of the demand for pork, and ceiling prices.

Brown: Would you carry all hogs being fed to the weights mentioned?

Williams: No Sir, ^The rate at which hogs are gaining is very important; ^The slow gainers should be marketed or slaughtered at lighter weights, letting the rapid gainers stay in the lot until they reach maximum weights.

Brown: Do you believe a farmer should stop feeding when his supply of feed is exhausted?

Williams: By no means; ^They should not stop short of heavier weights because of the lack of feed on hand so long as corn can be ^{found} ~~purchased~~ at prices ^{which} ~~will~~ make feeding profitable.

Brown:- How do these rules apply to the average farmer?

Williams: As is always the case, the efficient producer of pork can increase the margin of profit, ^{likewise}, the inefficient farmer must realize that he is working on narrower margins. It is a simple matter for every farmer to ^{obtain} ~~ascertain~~ actual cost figures on his hog production. A few simple records will show what gains he ^{gets} ~~attains~~ on an average and how much feed is consumer per 100 pounds of hogs marketed or slaughtered.

Brown: What is the farmer's outlook in hog feeding?

Williams: With rapidly rising costs and shortages, especially of labor, next year may be less profitable, even though the price level is higher. Every farmer should, therefore, be doing everything possible to cash in on the present situation. Feed probably will be higher next year in comparison with hog prices. Now is the time to feed hogs to heavier weights to ^{obtain} ~~secure~~ extra profits and give the government the needed pork and lard supplies, and to produce to the maximum for ^{use by} ~~the~~ farm families.
