PV MAGAZINE Pens Open Letter to Shannon Sharpe

I recently sent an open letter, and school paraphernalia to Undisputed and Shannon Sharpe in response to his nationally televised remarks in which suggested that HBCU athletic facilities were all terrible and for using Prairie View A&M University as a "probable" worse case than Bethune Cookman University.

Thanks Alumni for helping get Mr. Sharpe's ill-informed attention.

We hope he hears us.

Dear Mr. Sharpe:

My name is DeWayne Charleston, Publisher of Prairie View Magazine in Prairie View, Texas which is home to Prairie View A&M University. I am a fan of yours - from the gridiron to the studio. In fact, I would venture to say that many in our community are fans of you and your show.

You recently did a segment on Undisputed where you addressed the Ed Reed and Bethune Cookman University flap. You essentially made the point that Ed Reed should have known what was facing him upon his arrival at the university. Your implication was that he obviously did not do his homework.

Let me say on behalf of PV Nation, you obviously had not done your homework when you suggested that "Prairie View facilities were probably worse than Bethune-Cookman's".

Bethune-Cookman is our sister HBCU institution and fellow SWAC member. Together we will continue to rise with academic distinction for all of our students and student athletes. You may not know that the founder of Bethune Cookman University, Mary McCloud-Bethune; and a graduate of Prairie View A&M University, Frederick Douglas Patterson, co-founded the United Negro College Fund (UNCF). We have much in common and will continue to grow together.

We have been fortunate to obtain first class classroom, research, AND athletic facilities - on par with the best institutions of higher education in the U.S.. When you make a statement suggesting that sub-par facilities at HBCUs are the norm, not only do you promulgate the negative stereotypes of HBCU, but you hurt recruitment efforts of HBCU admissions offices which are already underfunded, not to mention their athletic programs.

I want to thank you for the yeoman job you do in representing our African-American athletes, especially those who speak out on causes of social justice. You are an institution in your own right. I salute you. But as for your take on Prairie View, you got it wrong. Terribly wrong.

I have included a video on thumb drive for your review in this package. You may also access it on YouTube by typing in "arial views of the SWAC (Prairie View)".

Members of our campus community would love to have the Undisputed do a show from our beautiful campus; one which has risen from the ashes of a former slave plantation. I am personally inviting you to Prairie View for a tour of the campus. This gives you and others a prime time (no pun intended) to showcase a more aesthetic view of Prairie View A&M University.

Thank you for taking the time to read this letter. Feel free to contact me at 281.508.0222 to arrange a visit with us.

Sincerely,

DeWayne Charleston, Publisher

Travis Scott's Webster Scholarship Fund Opens for Applicants

By: Sofia Montiel

Nationwide — Travis Scott's Waymon Webster Scholarship Fund provides financial support to HBCU students in their senior year who are facing financial challenges to ensure they can graduate on schedule.

The scholarship is led by the vision of Travis

Scott and his family, who has a long history of involvement in HBCUs. Both his parents and his sister attended HBCUs while his brother is currently enrolled also in an HBCU.

The scholarship fund is named after his grandfather Waymon Webster, who attended Prairie View A&M University and served as dean of its graduate school. Since this initiative is close to his heart, Scott has always been dedicated to providing help to Black students.

"I want students to know they can accomplish anything they set their mind to and that in a moment of financial uncertainty, we are here to help.

I hope these scholarships will free them up to be as innovative and creative as they can be as they conclude one chapter of their lives and begin another. Money should not be a barrier for students to dream big," Scott said, according to The HBCU Foundation.

In 2022, Scott gave away $1 million in scholarships through the Waymon Webster Scholarship Fund. 100 HBCU students from the graduating class of 2022 received $10,000 each to help pay for their final tuition fees so they could surely receive their college diplomas on time.

ott's Cactus Jack Foundation partnered with Astros Foundation to hold an HBCU Celebrity Softball Classic wherein most of the funds raised will go to the Waymon Webster Scholarship Fund.

SMU Adds Prairie View to 2023 Football Schedule

The SMU Mustangs have added the Prairie View A&M Panthers to their 2023 football schedule, the school announced on Tuesday.

SMU will host Prairie View at Gerald J. Ford Stadium in Dallas, Texas, Saturday, Sept. 16, 2023. The game will mark the first-ever meeting between the two schools on the gridiron.

Prairie View A&M is a public historically black land-grant university in Prairie View, Texas. The Panthers compete in the Southwestern Athletic Conference (SWAC) in the Football Championship Subdivision (FCS).

With the addition of Prairie View A&M, SMU has completed their non-conference schedule for the 2023 season. The Mustangs are scheduled to open the season with a home contest against the Louisiana Tech Bulldogs on Saturday, Sept. 2. SMU will also travel to take on the Oklahoma Sooners on Saturday, Sept. 9 and will visit Fort Worth to face the TCU Horned Frogs in the Battle for the Iron Skillet on Saturday Sept. 23.

The SMU Mustangs are the third non-conference opponent for Prairie View for the 2023 season. The Panthers are also scheduled to host the Abilene Christian Wildcats on Saturday, Sept. 9 and travel to face the Houston Christian University Huskies on Saturday, Oct. 14. The Panthers will return to Dallas to face the Grambling State Tigers in Annual State Fair Classic at the Cotton Bowl.

HBCU All-STARS To Showcase PVAMU Hoop Talent

ATLANTA -- HBCU All-Stars LLC has announced the second annual 2022-23 HBCU All-Stars Watch List featuring the nation's top HBCU student-athletes from the MEAC, SWAC, CIAA, SIAC, Tennessee State, North Carolina A&T, and Hampton Universities. Graduate Students Forward Yahuza Rasas and guard Will Douglas from Prairie View A&M has been selected to this years watch list.

The HBCU All-Star Game will showcase 24 of the best student-athletes from the four Historically Black Athletic Conferences, representing the MEAC & SIAC HBCU All-Stars versus SWAC & CIAA HBCU All-Stars, along with Tennessee State, Hampton, and North Carolina A&T State Universities HBCU All-Stars.

The 2023 HBCU All-Star Game, a college basketball showcase highlighting the best HBCU players in the country, will be held at Texas Southern University's H&PE Arena in Houston on Sunday, April 2 at 4 p.m. ET.

Travis L. Williams, HBCU All-Stars, LLC Founder/CEO and former head coach at two HBCUs Tennessee State University and Fort Valley State University said "What a blessing for us to celebrate Black culture, Black excellence, and Black history through our weeklong HBCU All-Star Game Experience in Houston. We are truly excited to showcase the nation's best HBCU student-athletes and brilliant coaches on a national stage and honor the illustrious playing careers of Fred "Curly" Neal (Johnson C. Smith University, CIAA), Sam Jones (North Carolina Central University, MEAC), Purvis Short (Jackson State University, SIAC), Caldwell Jones (Albany State University, SIAC) and Anthony Mason (Tennessee State University, Independent).

All of these amazing HBCU legends made their mark in this great game of basketball and reached the highest level of success in the NBA and Harlem Globetrotters. We are honored to recognize their impact and importance on our HBCU basketball culture during the 2022-23 basketball season leading up to the first ever HBCU All-Star Game on an HBCU campus at Texas Southern University."

This event is far more than a basketball game. HBCU All-Stars LLC will stage the HBCU All-Star Game Experience, a week-long festival that will kick off the week on Tuesday, March 28 and conclude the following Tuesday after the Championship game (April 4). It will celebrate the HBCU Experience and will be highlighted by a HBCU All-Stars College Admissions Fair, Community Outreach and Engagement, Pro Day Combine, Welcome Reception, Awards Ceremony, and Social Justice & Civil Rights panel discussion.

The HBCU All-Star Game will air live on the CBS Television Network and be available to stream on Paramount+.

Happy Birthday to Allene Adams and Pamela Morgan

from DeWayne Charleston and Prairie View Magazine

Every once in a while God will place someone in your life who will radically transform how you think, see, and approach life. In my case it has been Pamela Morgan. She has been a forceful advocate in my healthcare and a friend so dear. Pam and her mom, Allene, share birthdays a day apart, but they share the same heart. Both from God.

January 30th & 31st.

They are both examples of how God has shared His grace, love, beauty and tenacity with us all. Happy birthday ladies.

The Untold Story:

Three Upcoming Book Projects on the History of PVAMU

PRAIRIE VIEW, Texas (Jan. 26, 2023) – Prairie View A&M University is affectionately known as “The Hill” by students and alumni. The University is the second-oldest public higher education institution in Texas, and it remains a pinnacle of academic excellence[1].

Ranked the number four best-valued college and the number one HBCU in Texas, PVAMU is a top producer of engineers, nurses, educators and entertainers. Notable alums and those influenced by the University include engineer Carolyn Fritz, NFL Hall of Famer Ken Houston, actress Loni Love, producer DJ Premier and singer Charles Brown[2].

“PVAMU has played a pivotal role in elevating the economic, social and cultural plight of Black people in America,” said William T. Hoston, Ph.D., a political science professor and director of the Mellon Center for Faculty Excellence at PVAMU.

He and Will Guzmán, former PVAMU Black history professor and current assistant vice chancellor at North Carolina Central University, believe it’s time to celebrate the University’s contribution to history as we approach PVAMU’s sesquicentennial[3].

Sharing Lessons from a Resilient Past

Since its inception as Alta Vista Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas for Colored Youth in 1876, what would later become Prairie View A&M University has been at the forefront of American history.

In 1862, U.S. Congress enacted the Morrill Land-Grant Bill to establish public colleges and further President Abraham Lincoln’s post-civil war middle-class growth strategy[4]. But Texas refused to integrate schools. So, to qualify for funding, the state legislature opened a separate higher education institution for African Americans. They purchased Alta Vista Plantation in Waller County for $15,000, and the 1,388 acres that once housed 100 enslaved Black men and women welcomed the first class of eight male students[5].

The Board of Directors at Bryan College was appointed to manage the University, and in the initial year, Alta Vista College received only $5,000 to finance operations[6]. For many years, the University was forced to self-sustain[7]. The campus was perpetually underfunded, receiving little to no money, and the farm provided its only food[8].

In 1984, following a triumphant victory, an amendment to the Permanent University Fund validated PVAMU’s eligibility for available aid.

Inspired by these stories and others, Drs. Hoston and Guzmán saw the need for a book that captured PVAMU’s unique narrative.

Recording the Institution’s Place in History

When Hoston and Guzmán announced the call for chapter submissions related to PVAMU’s history, they received an overwhelming response. They paired the entries with rediscovered reprints, and collectively, the co-editors had enough for a three-part book series.

The first, “Prairie View A&M and the Quest for Justice,” will examine student-led and affiliate movements that fought for equal voting rights and social justice.

The second installation in the series, “The ‘Hill’ We Climbed,” will provide an inside look into individual student life, the formation of programs and departments, homecoming, sports and the interrelations of Greek and band life.

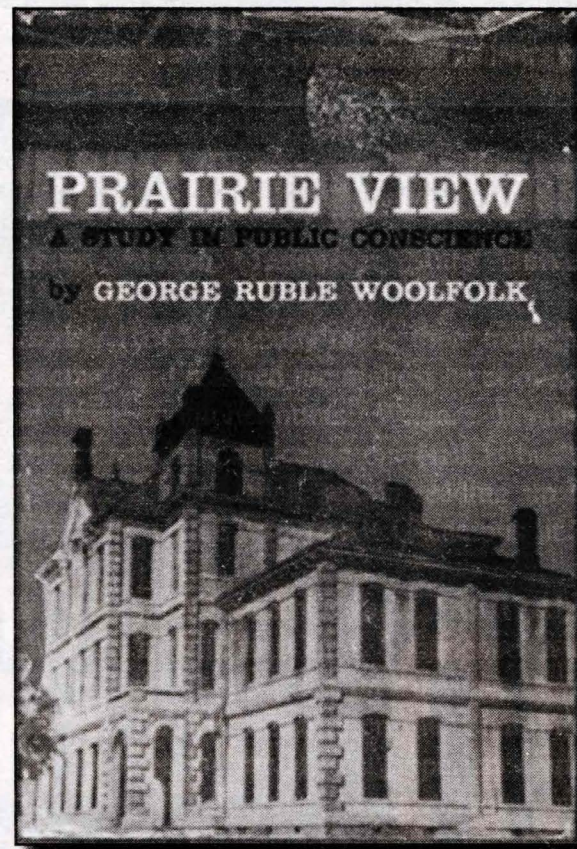

“Black Profiles in Greatness: A Legacy of Prairie View A&M University,” the final book within the series, will recognize notable alums and historical figures who’ve contributed to the institution.

Hoston and Guzmán split the books between two scholarly publishing companies, Texas Tech University Press and Texas A&M University Press, envisioning a comprehensive series with each book building on the next, exposing the University to a larger audience.

Only two books on PVAMU’s history are currently available, a one-lens narrative by George R. Woolfolk and a pictorial book by Michael J. Nojeim and Frank D. Jackson, but nothing documenting the institution’s totality since 1876.

Figures like Inez Beverly Prosser, the first Black woman to earn a psychology Ph.D. in 1933, and activist Lula B. White’s work with the civil rights movement have primarily gone omitted from the history books[9].

Still, securing a publisher for all three books took some work. "One publisher gave us the idea of turning the content into a blog," recounted Hoston. "It shows you that when people analyze Black history, they try to collapse it together when there are many facets to what Black people have achieved in this country."

Reaching Back to Move Forward

The book series is the work of a communitive effort involving alums, current students and elders. "The good thing about Prairie View is the people who are a part of the institution always come back, and they live and breathe the University," Hoston boasted.

Hoston stressed that creating a book that captures older alum narratives will help preserve a history that could otherwise be lost.

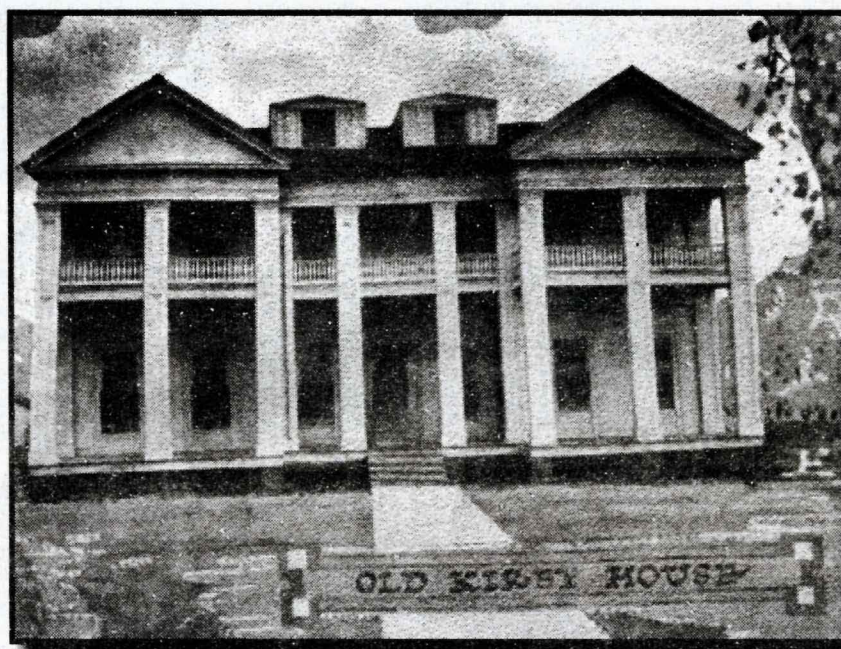

"I reached out to the elders for their blessing. I set up interviews and talked to them about the school's history," he said. Their inclusion is essential given the discussion surrounding the removal of Black history and Critical Race Theory from textbooks and instruction in half a dozen states, including Texas.

Connecting Current Students and Recent Alumni to PVAMUs Hidden Figures

"The untold story of PV is that it's the best HBCU in Texas and one of the best in the nation. We may not have gotten the recognition in the past, but we've known that to be true," said

Hoston.

The University has survived years of disproportionate funding, structural racism, discrimination, violence and political marginalization. Even when the state and surrounding white-segregated community pressured the University to close its doors, students and faculty turned inward and leaned on each other, forming an impenetrable bond.

"PV is one place that nurtures its students," said Hoston. "The professors care, and that's evident in how they teach the students and how students interact with the professors."

Guzmán says PVAMU has a culture of "We can do it, we shall do it, and we will do it." He anticipates that the books will encourage dialogue and teach students about the legacy of people who walked the hallowed grounds before them.

"Students need to know the history of the institution they're going to," Hoston said. His goal is for the books to become mandatory readings for incoming students, automatically distributed at admittance. "Kids need to know whom the buildings are named after, the significance of the illustrious alumni, and what they contributed to the institution."

Readers can anticipate the first book's release and possible accompanying podcasts in early 2024.

PV Magazine Community Leader of the Month

Prairie View City Councilwoman Wendy Williams is the Prairie View Magazine Community Leader the Month.

In fact, it is because of leadership like hers that we created this monthly acknowledgement. Her firm leadership and compassionate care of others reminds me of former Governor Ann W. Richards.

She has with clever precision and noble cause held up certain business of the city which would otherwise undermine the hard fought gains of previous City of Prairie View administrations.

Councilwoman Williams once agreed to leave a meeting of the Prairie View 4B EDC when three current council members showed up and forced the corporation to end its meeting, due to there being a quorum of council members. She has indeed turned the tables and now employs a strategy which others once used to stop official city business (PV 4B EDC).

It takes courage and conviction to do what she has done. And for that, Councilwoman Williams, we thank you.

PVAMU Honors the Legacy of an Alumnus and Community Leader

PRAIRIE VIEW, Texas (Jan. 26, 2023) – "Today, we salute the life of an extraordinary man."

(Ret.) Lieutenant Colonel Benny L. Lockett '61 exemplified a lifelong devotion to serving others. On Jan. 18, Prairie View A&M University's Office of the President, College of Agriculture and Human Sciences dignitaries, as well as family and friends gathered to rename the auditorium of the Cooperative Extension Program building after the retired military veteran.

Provost and Senior Vice President of Academic Affairs James M. Palmer presided over the ceremony. Guests recited the National Anthem and listened to a brief scripture and invocation from former alum Mark Falls '82.

Provost Emerita and Professor E. Joanne Thomas-Smith spoke about Lockett's extraordinary life, highlighting the indisputable characteristics of his spirit.

"It is for his labor, example as an extraordinary citizen, and extreme generosity, with his resources, love for his alma mater, and love for his humankind that we show the world in this dedication for Lt. Benny Lockett. We can indeed feel the love," Thomas-Smith said.

President Ruth J. Simmons praised Lockett for being a shining example of leadership and service, qualities he illustrated unerringly throughout his life.

Prior to post-military service, Lockett successfully pursued two degrees and carved out a career in corporate America. He returned to PVAMU to serve in the CEP and was a leader in several educational and leadership organizations.

"Each of these accomplishments alone is a considerable achievement," Simmons said. "That he did all of it so selflessly and well is a testament to what is possible when one does truly embrace all the possibilities and responsibilities that life offers."

Though Lockett served long before CAHS Dean Gerard D'Souza's tenure, D'Souza said his legacy has influenced and strengthened the college, namely CEP, which is the very heart of the college's mission, to provide educational and practical values to the community.

"Our college and university are proud to serve society in this way, and we've done that since our founding," D'Souza said. "Lockett's legacy continues to permeate not only within this auditorium but also the building and many others on and off campus."

As a member of The Texas A&M University System Chancellor's Century Council Executive Committee between 2007 to 2020, TAMUS Chancellor John Sharp said he knew Lockett well and held him in the highest regard for his support of the TAMU System. "I will remember him as a very kind, loyal and soft-spoken man," Sharp said in a message. "But most of all, I will remember him as my friend."

Lockett's unwavering selfless and generous heart was the throughline of the entire ceremony. His love for his community was undeniable for those who knew him best and those who only knew of his immense legacy.

As the pastor of Wheeler Avenue Baptist Church, Reverend Marcus Cosby described him as a "great man who served greatly."

Lockett's wife, Mamie, spoke fondly of her late husband, reminiscing on his devotion to his Christian faith and service to his church, alma mater and family. "He was a man who asked for very little," she said. "He was one in a million, and he is missed."

Lockett was born in Linden, Texas, and graduated from PVAMU in 1961 with a degree in agricultural education. He earned a master's degree in biology from Wisconsin State University and was soon accepted into its law school. After retiring from the military in the 70s, Lockett joined the United States Army Reserve.

For his distinguished military career, Lockett earned several accolades, including a Bronze Star Medal, Army Commendation Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, and many more.

He worked as an engineer for Texas Instruments before returning to PVAMU to serve in the CEP in various capacities throughout his time. An ardent supporter of education, Lockett was an active member of many boards, councils and committees, including the Fairview Reunion Corporation of Linden, Texas, which he founded, PVAMU Class of 1961 President, the George W. Bush Library Committee, the Prairie View A&M Foundation Board of Trustees, and countless others.

Lockett's selflessness prompted him to lead a life of duty in every facet of his life until his passing in 2020. From his time at PVAMU, serving in the military and fulfilling his call to his faith and the church, Lockett led well and committed to serving.

Toward the end of the ceremony, John Osby, Acting Board Chair of the Prairie View A&M Foundation, asked the audience to live challenged by his example and "go and be like Benny."

Now, Lt. Colonel Benny L. Lockett Auditorium is here to stay, inspiring everyone who walks through its doors and sealing Lockett's incredible legacy as one of PVAMU's most esteemed alums.

The Men's Breakfast of St. Francis Hears from Frank Jackson

Former Prairie View Mayor Frank Jackson spoke at the recent February Men's Breakfast. In his usual splendid oratorical style, he shared our history "literally" from beginning to end. Jackson encouraged the capacity crowd to get to know the real history of America and indeed the world. His knowledge of Texas history and the local history surrounding Prairie view and Waller County is indispensable to the student of black history.

The Breakfast led by Mr. Donald Sowell and other local residents, meets every third Saturday at 8:30a.m. the St. Francis of Assisi Episcopal Church in Prairie View. Admission is free and donations are accepted.

5 Reasons Credit Unions Offer the Best Auto Refinance Loans

Article by: Prairie View FCU | Cy-Fair FCU

Whether you have recently purchased a shiny, brand-new vehicle, or if you have grown to adore your reliable used one, it's possible to reduce your current monthly payment with an auto refinance loan!

Here are five reasons it makes more sense to refinance your auto loan through Prairie View FCU:

1. With us, you have a better chance of getting your loan refinanced. Even though the refinance process is the same and the underwriting process is similar, a credit union may be able to make some accommodations that a commercial bank would not. Many credit unions are also more inclined to listen to its members' needs and unique situations—sometimes adjusting terms of a loan accordingly.

2. We have competitive rates and term limits. Rates at a credit union are typically lower than the average rate at a competitor bank, resulting in instant savings. While it is possible you currently have the best rate available, as the economy has driven rates up recently, you could still find monthly savings by adjusting your term limit with a loan refinance. For example, if you are more concerned about keeping a lower, budget-friendly monthly payment, extending your term limit from 36 months with a lower rate to a 60- or 72-month term with a slightly higher rate could actually lower your monthly payment because you are simply spreading the cost over more months.

3. We provide personalized service. Because we are a not-for-profit organization and work to provide members with high-quality customer service, you can openly discuss your concerns about your loan, discuss our flexible "Skip-A-Pay" option, and review your financial situation with a professional lending officer. This can alleviate some of the pressure of applying and securing financing for your vehicle and you can be more confident that we are working with your best interests in mind.

4. We offer educational resources. Credit unions provide information such as refinancing options and how to make the best decisions when assessing which loan product is the best option for your auto refinance. If this is your first time undertaking an auto refinance and you are apprehensive about the loan process, you can turn to Prairie View Federal Credit Union for unbiased answers.

5. We offer a non-sales approach. Unlike commercial banks, which often give their lenders bonuses or some type of compensation for the loans they get approved, credit unions, as not-for-profit financial institutions, work for their members and do not try to sell you something you don't need.

As a non-for-profit financial institution, Prairie View Federal Credit Union offers the lowest rate we are able and provide flexible options that can meet your budget. If you would like to discuss the possibility of lowering your monthly payment, check with Prairie View Federal Credit Union.

Contact PVFCU for consultation about opportunities to reduce your monthly payment amount. Refinancing is available for vehicles not funded by PVFCU or CFFCU. Terms and conditions may apply. Federally insured by the NCUA. Equal Credit

Sheba Scott's BLACK WOMEN TRAVEL

My readers may have noticed that women have penned every article in this issue. I've published for 33 years and that's a long overdue first. With that as a backdrop, I'm so proud to introduce a new writer to you, Sheba Scott. Scott is an oncology nurse in Houston's Texas Medical Center and a proud graduate of Prairie View A&M University. The mother of two girls, she is an experienced traveler and a great writer. Sheba has traveled the world over and has plans for both France, India, and Thailand in the next 10 months. I hope that you will get your imaginations, and even your passports ready, as you enjoy Sheba Scott's Black Women Travel in Prairie View Magazine in the coming months..

Hello everyone,

I'm so excited about this opportunity to share with you about my travel adventures. As a little background about myself: I am a single parent of two daughters and was the primary caregiver of my parents in their later years. I'm sure that a lot of you can relate that during this period of one's life, there is not much time for selfcare. I traveled with my young girls and parents within the continental United States and Mexico on vacations. I was even able to sneak away for some solo vacations in the Caribbean (Jamaica-Ocho Rios, Montego Bay and Negril, Virgin Islands, St. Lucia, Dominican Republic, Turks and Caicos) during the summer while my mother watched the girls.

Now that both of my daughters are in college, I have taken travel to a whole new level. Over the past few years, I have traveled internationally to Dubai, Africa (Tanzania and Zanzibar), Hawaii, Egypt and Greece (Crete, Athens, Santorini and Mykonos) just to name a few.

Recently, I joined a travel club for women. Traveling solo has its benefits (peace, quiet and solitude), but group travel has opened a whole new avenue for me. The friendships and sisterhood that I have established through my travels are priceless. I'm still in contact with some of these women. A couple of ladies that I met in Africa were able to make it to my 50th birthday party last year. My focus in sharing my travel adventures with you is to inspire people of color to get out there and see the world. It is truly a life changing, momentous event!
